BATTLEDRESS BATTLE

News emanating from London, ancient novel ideas in process of incubation in the minds of rationing officials there, frequently proves disturbing to Americans who are aware that what happens in the rationing realm in England is likely to come into being in the United States some time later.

A recent story from London is to the effect that rationing officials in Britain are considering a standardized "battledress" for civilian men, a two-piece outfit that would do away not only with the vest but with collar and tie. It is not encouraging to read that British rationing officials are approaching the idea cautiously. It is the ideas that are approached cautiously nowadays that seem to result in execution.

In London tailors are not pleased with the idea, a rather natural economic reaction, but already 100,000 agricultural workers in England have been outfitted with reconditioned outfits, dyed green, and are alleged to like them. Too much reliance should not be placed on that report because agricultural workers by the millions in America have worn blue overalls and jumpers for years and seemed to like them.

Such attire was found satisfactory in rural areas for many years before the war, but farmers continued to buy suits of the type they liked for Sunday, holiday and evening wear. And there is no point in asserting that Joseph Stalin wears a collarless and tieless two-piece suit because Russians always affected unquenchable. It would be as sensible to advocate that Americans wear tablecloths because Gandhi wears one.

Many American men would be pleased with summer time clothing that would eliminate the collar and tie when their chief value seems to be the inducing of perspiration and night sweating. But men's clothing, as compared to women's dress, is still of rather somber hue, and to eliminate the collar and tie would be to take the last vestige of color from the conservatively-dressed man.

FARM AUCTIONS

During the few weeks between completion of winter chores and the preparation of the soil and seedling, farmers are enjoying their favorite winter sports—auction sales of dairy stock, farm equipment and machinery.

Although this is the normal season for farm auctions, the number of sales in the whole country, according to reports, greatly exceeds normal. The reasons for the increase in auctions are manifold, but the chief one is the farm labor shortage. Some farmers are cutting down their acreages and equipment and reducing dairy herds because labor to operate at an efficient peak is not available.

Thus it is happening that many farmers are going out of business largely because their help has been lured away to war industries for so-called skilled jobs. Does anyone ever reflect on what a highly skilled trade farming is? It takes many years of study and experience to make a good farmer.

What a vital blow to the nation, not only for now but for after the war, when possessors of this hard-learned skill are forced to the sidelines by a reckless drain on the farm labor supply. The nation needs food, and it can only be produced by a prosperous, busy and fairly-treated farm population.

Bucks County Prisoners Like To Work Outside

the peace or the courts. They are taken to jail by a constable, the sheriff or state police. At the jail office they are "written up" and their possessions are taken away from them. Their money and clothes are kept until they are released.

Fingerprints are taken and checked with federal records to see whether the prisoner may have any other counts against him. Each prisoner has his record card kept on file and if he repeats offenses they all appear against him.

A recommended menu is used and a balanced ration is served at all times, according to Warden Handy. Shoes are purchased from the Eastern Penitentiary, made by prisoners there. Handy said the best shoes cost $2.75 to $3.00 and the prisoners need the best because they are hard on shoes. Prisoners must take at least two baths a week. Before they are interned their clothes are put into a "decontaminating" machine or steam room and the men themselves are decontaminated in a similar manner. He said that sometimes men come to jail wearing a half dozen shirts and three or four suits, which make an excellent shroud for the tiny parasites. Some men get so low that they do not take a bath for a month at a time, he said, and going to jail really does them some good, for they learn habits of cleanliness at least.

A tobacco sales counter is maintained, with the money to buy new stock coming from the profits. If a man comes in without money he is given a pack of tobacco to tide him over. Most of the food used in the prison is raised by the prisoners at the Bucks County Home and on nearby tracts. Last autumn the prisoners canned 5,000 quarts of vegetables they raised and he said that they have about 2,500 left. From $55 worth of seed the prison realized $1,000 worth of canned goods.

The men are all taken out to do work, for Warden Handy finds that they work out much better if they have something to keep them busy. When they return they are glad to wash up, eat and go to bed.

Editor Courier:

Just a few lines to let you know I'm getting the paper every day, and it is the best thing in the world to read about everything in the old home town.

There are three fellows here from Bristol and they all enjoy the paper as much as I do. Their names are William Lynn and Hubert Nelson.

Well, there isn't much to say, only that I like the Navy very much. This is the life. I've been gaining weight ever since I've been here, so I guess that is a good sign.

MACHINE IN GOOD CONDITION MAKES SEWING VERY EASY

By Edna Stephany

Home Economics Representative.

The sewing machine that's in good working condition is a pleasure to use, and gives most satisfactory results.

Besides it will last a lifetime when it is properly cared for and repaired. When a sewing machine has become a big voice for such a little fellow, the used for a long time, it will begin to run hard and some adjustments will be needed. However, the moving parts of the machine should be cleaned and oiled before any adjustments are made. The homemaker can easily clean her own machine using kerosene, gasoline, or carbon tetrachloride as the cleaning fluid. Each has its disadvantages, however. Kerosene dries out slowly, gasoline is highly inflammable and it used the cleaning must be done out of doors away from any open flame, and carbon tetrachloride may damage the finish of the machine should any be spilled.

Whatever fluid is used, the cleaning procedure is the same. First release the belt from the balance wheel, remove the face plate, presser foot, needle, bobbin, throat plate, and side plate. Put all the screws in a flat pan so they won't get lost. Fill an oil can with the cleaning fluid, and with a stiff brush go over all the working parts of the head using a generous amount of the fluid. Place a small flat pan under the head to catch the excess liquid. Run the machine until the dirt is loosened from the moving parts.

To clean the feed dog and bobbin case, place the flat pan under the head of the machine and clean these two parts thoroughly, removing the excess fluid with a soft cloth. Do not remove the small piece of felt that is used to supply oil to the shuttle.

Next tip the head away from you and clean all the working parts on the underside, holding the pan to catch the excess fluid. Remove all lint and dust with a toothpick or stiff brush and be sure all pieces of thread are taken away from the bearings. In treadle type machines, these bearings must be cleaned and oiled thoroughly.

Replace the parts removed, oil with sewing machine oil, and run by hand to work in the oil. Wipe off the excess oil, thread up, and stitch on a piece of scrap material until the thread locks perfectly clean. Any necessary adjustments can be made after the machine has dried.

LONG ISLAND TOWN

ADOPTS CURFEW LAW

By International News Service

RIVERHEAD, L. I.—(INS)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York City has given his approval for such a little fellow, the curfew law he has been rooting for was recently adopted here, when it was ruled that all boys and girls under 16 are barred from the streets between 9:30 p. m. and sunrise.

The curfew, which went into effect March 1st, will continue until six months after the war. Children who violate the order will be presumed to be delinquent. The ruling is regarded as a necessary war measure in safeguarding the youth of the town.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Thousands of American housewives have planned to buy an electric mangle, that labor and time saving device for the family ironing. You can't buy one today, however, for manufacturers are making war goods. You can save, though, through your purchase of War Bonds and buy an electric mangle when they go on the market again.

The more planes, guns, ships and munitions we give our Army, Navy and Marines, the quicker will they do their job and bring an end to this war. Your purchase of War Bonds gives them the implements. Buy more and more War Bonds, save for the future, and at the same time hasten the end of this War. "You've Done Your Bit, Now Do Your Best." U. S. Treasury Department

Cold Frame Will Serve
Victory Garden Group

The Cold Frame Story—How to Build and Use It.

One Victory garden task which can be done in the winter is to construct a cold frame. This is a job for manual training classes, amateur wood workers or neighborhood groups. One cold frame will serve several small Victory gardens.

The accompanying diagram shows a small cold frame made to fit the standard sash, 3 by 6 feet. It may be made twice this size, 6 by 6 feet, but as a rule no larger. It may be made to fit a sash of any convenient size if a substitute for glass is used to cover the sash. I like a substitute for glass better because it is light and does not break. An ideal type is made of a wire screen or a cloth covered with a transparent plastic material.

The cold frame depends upon the sun for its heat, and should always slope toward the south and have uninterrupted sunshine all day. The frame should be made of 1-inch or heavier lumber of cypress, white pine or some wood which resists rot. Using the illustration as a working plan, the frame and sash can be built now and held until the first thaw next month make it possible to dig a pit in which to install it.

Dig a shallow pit a bit larger than the frame, and set the frame so that at least four inches are below the surface. Then pile earth all around the outside, tamping it so that no drafts can enter. Earth should be banked against the frame several inches all around.

Soil should also be thrown in the pit inside the frame, so that the surface is level with the ground outside. While it is possible to sow seeds directly in the soil, it is better to use flats, or seed boxes, because they can be handled to better advantage when time comes for transplanting. The frame will serve the same purpose as a hot-bed, except that it is started later, since artificial heat is lacking.

Mamie Dugan, New Buckley street, spent Saturday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lowden, Burlington, N. J.

"Here's the key to my heart," the soldier wrote to Mary. "Don't lose it." He enclosed a picture of himself, and told Mary he was "a Yank in the Middle East who has best wishes for a Yank in Orange."

BRILLIANT SHOOTING OF MELIDIO WINS FOR THE FARRUGGIO TEAM ITS EIGHTH STRAIGHT VICTORY; DIAMOND TEAM VICTIM

Brilliant second-half shooting by Nick Melidio gave the Farruggio team its eighth straight win of the Bristol Basketball League last night and undisputed possession of first place. Melidio set the pace as Farruggio topped the Diamond team, 38-29.

To cap the verdict from their Mill street foes, the expressmen had to stage several spurts as with three minutes left to play, the Diamond boys were enjoying a four-point lead. Melidio cut this lead to two points with a field goal and Jack Accardi deadlocked it.

Potena's foul gave Farruggio's lead by a one-point margin but Melidio followed this by scoring four double-deckers in fast order to give the ultimate winners its commanding edge. Melidio scored 17 points in the Farruggio triumph, sixteen of which were countered in the second half.

Outstanding in the Diamond team's defeat was Teddy Sak. Sak, besides doing a fine job in holding "Chick" DiAngelo to a lone field goal, scored three double-deckers. Twice it was his field goals which put the Diamond boys in front.

The Big Green outfit was slow in getting started as the Farruggio team's defense shut them out from the floor for the first seven minutes of the game. But in that remaining minute, the Mill Streeters scored five points to cut the Farruggio lead from 8-1 to 8-5 at the quarter.

HARKINS' FIELD GOAL WINS FOR FLEETWINGS

"Brock" Harkins' field goal from beyond the half-way mark of the floor gave the Fleetwings Arrows a one-point victory over the Rohm and Haas team last night on the Mutual Aid floor. Final score was Fleetwings, 42; Rohm and Haas, 41.

Harkins' twin-pointer came with less than twenty-seconds remaining to be played and immediately after DeLuca had put the chemical workers in the lead with a one-handed shot. Within the last minute of play, the lead in the game had changed hands three times.

Leaders in scoring for the airplane workers were Smith and Delevich who scored 12 points each. Klein and Vanzant were high for the losing team.

VOLTZ-TEXACO SCORES WIN OVER HUNTERS

Despite a gallant rally by the Hunter team, the Voltz-Texaco five scored a 46-43 victory over the munition workers on the Mutual Aid floor. At one stage of the game, the gasoleers had a 15 point lead over the Hunter boys.

Leading in the Voltz victory was Dick Brown who counted a quintet of double-deckers and a foul for 11 points. Barbeta was high man for the losing team. Hutchison accounted for the field goal which gave the Voltz-men the victory.

The loss sent the Hunter boys tumbling into a deadlock with Voltz for last place.

DI MAGGIO'S SUCCESSOR - By Jack Sords

It contained the copy of a letter dated Philadelphia, June 20, 1930, to Alex. Campbell, replying to queries regarding the manufacture and sale of soap. The copy is a fine specimen of good penmanship, quaint phonetic-spelling, misuse of capitals, and lack of punctuation.

Decidedly interesting is the analysis of the fuel (wood) situation in the towns noted, in 1750. We have a fuel (oil) situation of our own being analyzed in 1943.

The stoves mentioned as being used by the "Dutch" were the "five-plate, jamb stoves." This stove is fully described and illustrated in the Bucks County Historical Society's second edition of the late Dr. W. R. Mercer's "Bible in Iron," revised, corrected and enlarged by Horace M. Mann, Curator of the Society.

The museum of the society contains the largest collection of these decorated stoves and stove plates, in the world.

From the careful way in which the writer, presumably Mr. Wallace, since the copy was unsigned—went into the subject of fuel, he would, were he living today, be a Class A-1 member of any Fuel Rationing.

After the main explosion had occurred there were several other minor explosions, it is stated, caused by the bursting of vats.

Officials of Fleetwings, Inc., and the Hunter Manufacturing Company called Bristol police, and offered their services as well as their facilities if such were needed.

Most of the injured were treated at the Wagner hospital excepting a number who were treated at the plant dispensary for minor cuts, burns and bruises.

Walter Kornfeld and Thomas Heckler were both given treatment at the Harriman Hospital. Kornfeld is burned about most of the body and his head.

Two freight cars loaded with explosive chemicals and parked on a spur track at the plant were pushed out of danger by scores of volunteers.

The Rohm & Haas Co. is engaged in turning out plastic noses and turrets for bombers and fighting planes; and also manufactures chemicals for other war plants.

Last June 26th two sharp explosions started a fire in the synthetic rubber plant, but it was soon controlled.

The explosion and fire of last evening is said by company officials to be the first serious accident at the plant in the last 10 years.

Bristol police and Pennsylvania Motor Police from South Langhorne barracks were summoned to the scene.

The Bristol Consolidated Department was under the direction of Chief Clifford Hagerman. Assistant Chief Livingston Joyce remained on duty at the fire station with a crew of men to take care of any other calls that might be received.

Bristol was being considered as a potential addition to the "Soap-Circuit."

I discovered this while looking over a pre-Revolutionary, letter copy-book of John Wallace, merchant and importer, of Philadelphia. The book was presented to the Bucks County Historical Society by Edwin Arthur Bye, of Holicon, Pa.
